THE BUFFALO TRAGEDY.

N THE MIDST OF A VAST MULTITUDE, surrounded by the beauty of a national pageant, typifying in his person the triumphant progress of a great nation, the president of the United States was shot doers the congregation rose as one man and went out looking for some-body to do. mortally, it is feared-and a day of rejoicing was turned in an instant to

Instead of a handclesp, he found the murderer's weapon before him, and the blow fell.

Not since Lincoln was assassinated has this country been so shocked and startled. The crime was the more horrifying because of the attendant rircumstances. The president himself has always been so genial, so approachable, that enmity toward him personally was unimaginable.

The time has come when the barbers pout. The time has come when the barbers pout. As the young men say, "Cut the hair cut out."

The surgeons smile, and with good reason, For they cut in in the football season.

Peculiarities of St. Joseph.

(Kansas City Star.)

And now statisties show that St. Joseph has fewer deaths per 1,000 of its population than any other city in the country. It logically follows that St. Joseph has fewer people proachable, that enmity toward him personally was unimaginable.

The time has come when the barbers pout.

As the young men say, "Cut the hair cut out."

The surgeons smile, and with good reason, For they cut in in the football season. very quality was so well known that his assailant used it to make his aim pertain. It was characteristic of the president that he should have been so willing to meet every man on an equal footing that Nieman, a stranger and a murderer, was allowed to come near enough almost to touch him as he "Oh. I see," replied the Harmless "Unatic, "he is an old-timer."

The deed was atrocious enough in itself, but the method of its consum mation was even worse-so villainous that any ordinary punishment for by perpetrator seems entirely inadequate.

One could understand the insane deed of Wilkes Booth when he killed Lincoln; Guiteau's murder of Garfield was palliated because it was believed the assassin was crazed irresponsible. But Nieman's cold, deliberate eruelty has no relieving ght and it seems almost a pity that such a rabid brute in human guise could not have been treated as a mad dog would have brute in human guise could not have been treated as a mad dog would have on the instant he made his attack.

For the man Nieman no punishment can be too swift or severe. The gone several months. been the instant he made his attack.

meagre facts of his history point to his conection with the anarchist propoganda. Whether this is his excuse for attempted murder or not, he has not excuse for living. He and all his ilk deserve nothing but the death they have been spending the summer.

Miss Hattie McKellar leaves today NATIONAL BANK tion to his duty as a husband and friend.

What the result of yesterday's tragedy to the country will be, no man can foretell. If the president dies he will be succeeded by a man whose temperament and public life have not impressed the public with his fitness for the presidency. This much is certain, however: The conservatism of the people, the known solidity of the nation's foundation, will prevent any violent change in the financial, social or commercial situation. Mr. Roosevelt, if he becomes Alice Paul, Ethel Lane, Whiffred Gatrell, Messrs.
